Water Ways Exhibit Gets Kids' Creativity Flowing

New Exhibit at the Zimmer Children's Museum Focuses on How Water Connects Us All

Los Angeles, CA – On June 5th, the Zimmer Children's Museum hosted the grand opening of its newest exhibit, Water Ways during its first ever Members Only event.

The museum's Water Ways addition focuses on how water connects us all. Kids can construct channels for boats and underwater life, create intricate pipe sculptures and fountains, and practice watering tree targets with water blasters.

"Everyone at the Zimmer is so excited about the opening of Water Ways," said Julee Brooks, Museum Director. "We are honored to showcase a beautiful original artwork by Burton Morris that depicts the growth and building of life.

Water Ways replaced the Zimmer's existing Water Table exhibit. The new design is more eco-friendly and energy efficient, making it more directly aligned with the museum's dedication to teaching people about the BIG IDEAS of global citizenship, community responsibility, and cultural sensitivity.

"The exhibit also features the word 'water' written in 10 languages and environmental imagery that shows how essential water is to every creature on the planet," Brooks said. "We really hope this exhibit illustrates that we all share so much and emphasizes the importance of protecting resources that are so precious to us all."

The Zimmer Children's Museum exhibit was created by children's museum exhibit designer kidZibits. The exhibit was made possible through the generous donation of the Real Estate Principals Organization of The Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles.
